NUCLEAR TESTS IN THE NEGEV

SOCRED PLEDGE — AN EDITORIAL

CARMICHAEL INDISCRETION

The Council of the Sages of the Social Credit Party met in camera and resolved that their candidate in Toronto's St. Paul riding is not anti-Semitic but "indiscreet". Neil Carmichael, who last week became the first political candidate to make an anti-Semitic remark (the Rothschilds are buying Canadian real estate through non-Jewish agents), will remain an official candidate of the Social Credit Party. As for his anti-Jewish remarks, they were termed "indiscreet" only.

Shall we assume that Carmichael is not guilty of anti-Semitism, which is not a crime in the Social Credit book? Shall we believe that his remarks were only a lapsus linguae in the sense that he was too revealing by making public the prejudices, bias and bigotry of a certain group?

Social Credit national leader Robert Thompson last week pledged for the record, that Mr. Carmichael would not remain an official candidate if found guilty of his anti-Semitic remarks.

Well, Mr. Thompson promised. So what?

REPORTS ON ISRAEL'S NUCLEAR TESTS: Premier David Ben Gurion

MOSCOW ACCUSES ISRAELIS; BEAMS "NEWS" TO ARABS

LONDON (JCNS). — Sensational reports accusing Israel of carrying out purely military "nuclear tests in the Negev" have been made in Moscow broadcasts to the Arab countries.

Commenting on a statement allegedly made by Premier Ben-Gurion to the correspondent of the "Daily Sketch", in which the Israeli Premier is said to have assured him that Israel would become "a nuclear power in 8-10 years' time," Moscow radio said that it was clear that Israel had made rapid progress in the nuclear field. Explaining the speed of Israel's progress, Moscow radio claimed that it was due solely to the great financial aid she had received from the "U.S.A. and its allies in NATO".

The colonialists, Moscow radio said, were trying to create a nuclear industry in Israel with long-term objectives in mind. As a colonialist "stooge' Israel had to comply with the wishes of her masters, but she also had in mind expansionist policies in the Middle East, which would give effect "to her own aggressive designs against the Arab countries."

Significantly, Prague radio, which has lately shown a clear tendency to follow Moscow in its anti-Israel campaign, accused Dr. Nahum Goldmann in a special broadcast on Israel-West German relations of conferring with Chancellor Konrad Adenauer on the question of missiles "and nuclear bombs." These discussions Prague radio alleged, had centred around new donations and generous aid from Bonn to Israel. But "well informed circles" had indicated that the "two reactionary leaders did not confine their talk to German marks alone, but also discussed arms, especially nuclear bombs and missiles," the radio said.

EAST GERMANY OFFICIALLY HONORS THE JEWISH VICTIMS OF NAZI PERSECUTION

Berlin (JCNS). — East German Government officials, representatives of the Communist Party and members of the Jewish community laid wreaths at two Jewish cemeteries in East Berlin on Sunday. The ceremony was to mark the 20th anniversary of the day when the Nazis decided on the "Final Solution of the Jewish Question", East Berlin circles declared.

East German newspapers published articles commemorating the events of 20 years ago, between February 20 and March 3, 1943, when the last members of the Berlin Jewish community were sent to concentration camps. A few days later about 150 Jews committed suicide and were buried at the Weissensee cemetery.

Among the speakers at Sunday's ceremony was Dr. Martin Riesenburger, Rabbi of the East Berlin community.

DEFINITE: NO MATZOT FOR JEWS IN RUSSIA

MOSCOW (JCNS). — The CJN report about the continuous ban on matzot in Moscow is now confirmed. Soviet state bakeries will again not bake matzot for the Jewish population this year. This means that religious Jews will be left at the mercy of highly inadequate private sources of supply if they want to get matzot at all.

An indication of that decision was given unofficially a few weeks ago, when it was disclosed that applications from a number of Jewish community leaders, including those in Moscow, to remove last year's ban were left unanswered.

Soviet diplomats abroad who have been approached by Jewish religious leaders on the questions have clearly stated that Soviet state bakeries will not be allowed to bake matzot, but, they added "Jews may bake them privately."

This news has caused much disappointment in Jewish circles in Russia, even among those who are not strictly Orthodox, but regard this ban as a discriminatory measure against the Jewish population.

Ray D. Wolfe:

TORONTO UJA REACHES GOAL

The 1963 United Jewish Appeal campaign is "within sight of its goal," Ray D. Wolfe, campaign chairman, declared following the Opening Dinner at Beth Tzedec Synagogue.

"A total of $1,600,000 has been pledged thus far, which is almost half of our 3-million-3 goal," Mr. Wolfe said. "With such an encouraging beginning, this Jewish community has within its grasp the attainment of one of its most successful drives. I urge those who did not attend the dinner to follow the example of generosity shown by those who attended and to assume their fair share of the pressing local and overseas burdens."

In his remarks Mr. Wolfe also said that $3,300,000 "is necessary to accommodate even the most modest requirements of our schools, our library, Hillel, Congress and supplementary relief."

IMMIGRATION— MAIN TASK

In concluding, he said, "We are opening a million closed minds and hearts to our cause, but we shall never have complete success unless and until every Jew in this community assumes his fair share of this burden and we act in unison to accomplish our goal."

Rabbi Israel Goldstein, World Zionist leader, told Torontonians: "Immigration is Israel's Number One objective—the primary reason for its existence as defined in the Law of Return."

He asserted that newcomers are "flooding the shores of Israel unannounced, and Israel must be ready for them," because "Israel is the home of every Jew; it's the place where, when you knock, they've got to let you in."

Dr. Goldstein said it costs $5,200 for each immigrant family, including transportation, housing, food packages, bedding, furnishings, utensils and education, and that 15,000 families are expected this year.

"Talks I have had with Toronto's leaders have led me to believe that you have not reached your top potential in giving," Dr. Goldstein told the dinner. "You've done well but not well enough in the light of the desperate needs that must be filled."

Head table guests at the Beth Tzedec dinner were: J. Irving Oelbaum, honorary president of the United Jewish Welfare Fund; Ray D. Wolfe, chairman of the United Jewish Appeal Administrative Committee, and Mrs. Levy, chairman of the Federation of Jewish Women's Organizations; Dr. Israel Goldstein, chairman of Karen Hayesod —United Israel Appeal in Jerusalem, guest of honour; Mr. and Mrs. Ray D. Wolfe, John D. Fienberg, president of the United Jewish Welfare Fund, and Mrs. Fienberg; John R. Devor, vice-president of the Zionist Organization of Canada, and Mrs. Devor, 1963 chairman of the UJA Women's Division; Controller Philip Givens, Q. C., president of the Toronto Zionist Council, and Mrs. Givens; Eliezer Dembitz, Consul of Israel in Toronto, and Mrs. Dembitz.

Three tables at the dinner were occupied by members of the 1963 Study Mission to Europe and Israel. Attending from the Study Mission were Morris Adams, Moe Emer, H. Wayne Tanenbaum, Bernard Persiko, Dr. Gerald Halbert, Jeffrey Cohen and Murray Pumack.

Secret Diplomacy

Several days ago, speaking in the Knesset, Israel's Foreign Minister Golda Meir stressed her country's "steadfast friendship with the United States." — She also mentioned Washington's "great understanding of Israel's security needs" and the "unique" Alliance with France

This was only a few days before the coup in Damascus which practically completed the encirclement of Israel by those who openly profess their enmity toward the Jewish state. The only link missing in the chain of enclosure is Jordan. In fact, it has been stressed repeatedly that Nasser's ambition, since he took over, has been to cut through the Negev into Jordan so that Israel be completely surrounded.

* * *

Last weekend the new Syrian regime and the young Iraqi government proposed the establishment of a five-country Arab alliance. Those eligible are Egypt, Yemen, Syria, Iraq and — far to the west — Algeria.

Although Arabs may have other problems than Israel to tackle and to solve, we know from experience that their "nationalists" are using the ugly weapon of anti-Israel demagoguery to build a bridge over all intra-Arab disagreements. The one slogan which contains the ingredient to cover Arab disunity is anti-Israelism.

Thus, when Mrs. Golda Meir states in Israel's parliament that the Kennedy administration, which has overtly supported Nasser and his friends, understands Israel's security needs, she probably is in possession of some secret facts. For, at this moment, to anyone contemplating Israel's position and Nasser's control over most of his neighbors nothing is further from the truth than a glowing report on Washington's understanding of Jerusalem's special position.

* * *

In the not too distant past, when the Jewish position in Europe was clearly menaced by the arch enemy of our people, some leaders attempted to assure us of secret steps which were taken to rescue the Jews trapped in Hitler's inferno.

Of course, it became the great fortune of our generation to see today that Israel flourishes as an independent state, as a sovereign nation, and is not completely dependent upon the aid of others, as were the embattled Jews on the Continent.

* * *

However I, for one, do not believe in secret formulas for the solution of the number-one-problem on our agenda today: the relationship between Israel and her Arab neighbors. We are living in a world where international problems can be seen with utmost clarity by every amateur and student of world politics. Thus I would have welcomed more details and facts from the courageous and suave lady who today is responsible for Israel's foreign relations.

If there is any secret deal, I feel sure Cairo is aware of it. So why shouldn't we know too?

Immigration To Israel Rises

Jerusalem, (JCNS) The rate of immigration has again risen after several months of cessation or of slowing down, a spokesman for the Jewish Agency announced here on Wednesday.

During 1962, he said, the Agency's Absorption Department provided just under 15,000 housing units. Of these more than 1,700 were for larger families. Just over half of last year's immigrants went to development areas, over one-third to coastal villages or to collective or co-operative settlements, under one per cent to Youth Aliyah Institutions and the remainder joined relatives.

Nearly I£ 5m were distributed during the year in loans to newcomers to enable them to purchase homes, undertake study courses or settle themselves, the spokesman said.

Yevtushenko's Wife Is Jewish

PARIS (JCNS). — Galia Yevtushenko, wife of the young Russian poet, is Jewish and her parents perished in a concentration camp. This was revealed last week by Mrs. Yevtushenko in the course of a conversation with a French journalist in the South of France.

The poet and his wife were visiting Marc Chagall, the famous French Jewish painter, who lives at Grasse, near Nice. Chagall was one of the very few persons the Yevtushenkos particularly wished to see during their stay in France.

CZECHS BAKING MATZA

Prague, (JCNS) Czechoslovakia's Jewish communities are actively preparing for Passover.

Matzot are being baked under the supervision of the Chief Rabbi of Bratislava, Rabbi Elias Katz. The larger communities are holding collective Sedarim.

PURIM FESTIVITIES IN PRAGUE

Prague, (JCNS) Prague's Jewish community held a "Purim Academy" and dance evening and a children's party for Sunday afternoon, in celebration of Purim.

Nazi Gang Active In Hamilton

Hamilton, Ont. (CJN).— The Jewish Community is in an uproar because of repeated incidents this week caused by teenagers who wear Nazi insignias. Swastikas have appeared on some buildings besides anti-Jewish slogans.

Police and Jewish community leaders have started an investigation.

TORONTO SOCIETIES TO HONOR MARTYRS

This coming Wednesday evening, March 20th, representatives of about one-hundred Jewish fraternal organizations and societies of Toronto will meet at the Beth Sholom synagogue for the Sefer Hazikaron ceremony. (Sefer Hazikaron is the Book of Remembrance which the fraternal groups, known as folk organizations, for the Histadrut will present to the Ghetto Fighters' Museum at the Kibbutz Lohamay Haguetaot in Israel).

Chairman of the evening will be Rabbi David Monson. Guest speakers will be: the Hon. Allan Grossman, MPP., Minister without Portfolio, who heads the Toronto Committee for the Ghetto Fighters' Museum; the well-known New York Yiddish poet, Yaacov Glatstein; the Hon. Eliezer Dembitz, Israeli Consul here; A. Shurem, Canada's Histadrut director; and Israel Stolarsky, New York Histadrut leader.

Delegates of organizations present at the consecration ceremony will sign the pages of the Book of Remembrance. (Each page is devoted to a town, village or community devastated by the Nazis.)

"The Sefer Hazikaron, which will be presented to the Israeli museum by a delegation from Toronto, represents a tangible link with our glorious past in Eastern Europe," declared Jacob Egit, director of the Fraternal Organization for Histadrut in Toronto.

The artistic program will consist of Ghetto and Concentration Camp music rendered by the Fershko's Israeli artists.

REBBE'S GRANDSON WINS SCIENCE PRIZE

New York (JCNS) Two Jewish boys, one of them the grandson of the Modzhister Rebbe won the first two coveted Westinghouse Science Talent Research Scholarship prizes in a contest among 22,000 high school students in all 50 states.

The Rebbe's grandson, Sylvain Cappel, aged 16, of New York, took the first prize worth $7,500. The second boy Arthur Shapiro, 17, of Philadelphia, won the second prize of $6,000.

Cappel, an observant Jew whose forte is pure mathematics, was a student at the Solanter Yeshiva. The judges hailed him as the best of the coming young scientists.

NEIL CARMICHAEL — A CJN INTERVIEW

ON MONDAY: THE SOCRED CANDIDATE ATTACKED JEWS; ON TUESDAY, THEY BECAME HIS "BEST FRIENDS"

By B. DYMENT

There's no doubt about it — last week's top prize-winner in the election coverage sweep-stakes in Toronto was NEIL CARMICHAEL, the heretofore obscure Social Credit candidate in St Paul's riding who was the subject of critical editorials in our metropolitan daily press, and whose speech before a 23-member audience on March 5th openly raised the grisly spectre of anti-Semitism for the first time in this election.

Dismay was my initial reaction to the headline that greeted me in Wednesday's morning paper: "JEWS HAVE DESIGNS ON MINES: CARMICHAEL. "What Jews — what mines — and who is Carmichael!" I asked myself. The first paragraph below the headline gave me my answers. "The heirs of the late Baron de Rothschild are trying to buy all the Canadian mines they can through a non-Jewish agent here, Neil Carmichael, Social Credit candidate for St. Paul's riding, charged last night." Subsequent paragraphs went on to say that according to Mr. Carmichael, "the Rothschild family was part of an international financiers circle attempting to acquire all Canadian business enterprises".

* * *

The key phrase, of course was 'through a non-Jewish agent here". The suggestion was implicit: here was a plot by international Jewish bankers, hiding behind a respectable Christian front (Methodist, Presbyterian, Catholic?) aimed at gaining control of Canada's mineral resources.

Editorials in Thursday's papers confirmed the fact that my interpretation could not be attributed to Jewish super-sensitivity.

Permit me to re-capitulate how one newspaper, "The Globe and Mail", covered the story. (I chose this paper for reasons which will be apparent later on.)

WEDNESDAY, MARCH 6: Report of the Tuesday night Social Credit meeting at the Yonge Street party headquarters, excerpts of which appear above.

THURSDAY, MARCH 7: Editorial headed "Suspicions of Anti-Semitism" which began as follows: "From its earliest day the Social Credit party has been suspected of having anti-Semitic inclinations. The suspicion will be strengthened by the speech made on Tuesday by the Socred candidate in St. Paul's, Mr. Neil Carmichael".

Twice more in Thursday's "Globe" reference was made to Mr. Carmichael's remarks. In an address made by Allan Grossman, Minister without Portfolio in the Ontario Government, before a joint dinner meeting of Roman Catholic laymen and the Canadian Council of Christians and Jews, he stated: "Real Caouette, Deputy Leader of the Social Credit Party is typical of those men in history who were willing to capitalize on racial and religious prejudice's in order to gain power". Mr. Grossman referred also to Mr. Carmichael's warning that "foreign Jewish interests were trying to get all the Canadian mines they could."

Again that day, Mr. Carmichael's statement appeared in the report of a political meeting at Ryerson Institute addressed by candidates of all four parties. I quote: "Mr. Carmichael's statements were frequently punctuated by throat-clearing and grunts as he said Canada's monetary system was controlled by the country's banks, which in turn were controlled by foreign financiers. As in a speech Tuesday, he named the family of the late Baron de Rothschild as one of these foreign financial elements. But he denied that he had made any anti-Jewish remarks Tuesday when he first made this charge".

* * *

FRIDAY, MARCH 8: Denial by Mr. Carmichael that his statement about the Rothschilds and the purchase of Canadian mines was intended to be anti-Semitic. Further on in this same article, comment was made by Richard Day, President of the Young Social Credit Association of Ontario, who termed statements attributed to Mr. Carmichael "irresponsible and blatant ignorance, and a disgrace to the Social Credit Party. I have expected something like this for a long time. A number of us have worked in the past to try and prevent it. I find Mr. Carmichael's anti-Semitism thoroughly distasteful".

SATURDAY, MARCH 9: Robert Thompson, questioned in Toronto by reporters on his reaction to charges of anti-Semitism against Neil Carmichael, said he had ordered an investigation into the charges by the Socred National Organization and would await a report before deciding what to do. Later, Mr. Carmichael, after emerging from a meeting with the party leader and other Toronto candidates issued a further "denial" of the charges against him and added that he "did not recall" using the word Jewish at all. Sometime during the day he was to face a tribunal of the National Socred Association to explain his statements.

* * *

There you have the factual background of the case as it developed.

Now the results of my own personal investigations: They began on Thursday, March 7, with a two-hour interview with Mr. Carmichael, a subsequent brief meeting, a lengthy conversation, a search through the "Globe and Mail" library files for mention of the Rio Tinto mining operations and their non-Jewish Canadian agent, and a conversation with the city editor of the "Globe and Mail".

Social Credit Headquarters directed me to Mr. Carmichael's coin and stamp shop in the Bloor Street subway arcade where he welcomed me most hospitably. A tall, well-built affable man in his forties, Mr. Carmichael was quite agreeable to being interviewed. Under the circumstances, I thought he seemed immensely cheerful about the whole affair. In fact, highly elated that he had become an overnight celebrity and had made the papers sit and take notice of Social Credit in Toronto. Yet he did express some degree of apprehension — what would all his Jewish customers think about those newspaper stories? Would It influence their patronage at his shop, he wondered aloud.

* * *

Despite his affability, I found Mr. Carmichael a hard man to pin down on the one point I was concerned about. When I asked him point-blank, "Did you make any anti - Semitic statements in your speech on Tuesday night," he repied at once,

"No, I did not INTEND any statement I made about the Rothschilds to be taken as anti-Semitic. Why, I can show you a copy of that speech. There's nothing anti-Semitic there."

"Yes," I persisted, "but did you say exactly what was in your printed speech?

"Oh," he laughed good-humouredly, "I never know what I'm likely to say when I get up there to talk. But all that about the Rothschilds is true—you can read it for yourself—page 272 in the book by Frederic Morton called "The Rothschilds", and its a best-seller."

Any mention of the Rothschilds seemed to trigger Mr. Carmichael into launching a heated tirade against Canada's monetary system, international bankers, and Social Credit fool-proof remedies for curing Canada's ills.

I interrupted again, to return to the one statement that had sparked the whole investigation.

"Did you say that the Rothschilds were trying to buy up Canada's mines through a non-Jewish agent, implying that they were involved in some undercover manoevre and needed a "respectable" front?

"No," he repeated patiently, "but you read that book — it's all in there — about the Rothschilds controlling a territory in Canada as big as England and Wales put together".

"If those reporters misquoted you, then, Mr. Carmichael, why don't you sue them for libel? After all, this is a terrible accusation against anyone's good name — to be branded an Anti-Semite."

"Just dirty politics, that's all," and he added," Everybody knows the press are always distorting the news, and suppressing what they don't want people to know — especially about the Social Credit Party. Look how they tried to split our leaders — Thompson and Caouette. And now they're trying to split me and Thompson. That's just dirty politics."

Referring again to "international financiers", and "the Rothschilds", he pressed home another point.

* * *

"Look at how the Rothschilds have exploited Israel. Why, all you can get back on Israel Bonds today is ten cents on the dollar. Remember the Sinai Campaign, they were even able to dictate to Israel's Finance Minister to withdraw the troops because financial interests were involved. (Mr. Carmichael expressed surprise when I told him he could easily verify the fact that Israel in a few weeks will be redeeming more than $25 million in Israel Bonds — at full face value, plus interest, and in American funds, and that any Israel Bond holder could walk into any branch of the Royal Bank of Canada and get a 75% loan on his bond.)

On Friday, I followed up the Globe and Mail's published denial by Mr. Carmichael that there was any intent to be anti-Semitic in any of the remarks he made about the Rothschilds. "I have many Jewish friends and from time to time attended local Jewish affairs and meetings," he stated, and added that many of his customers are Jewish.

In my telephone conversation with Mr. Carmichael that Friday morning, I asked him once again for a simple YES or NO to the question: "Did you say that the heirs of the late Baron de Rothschild are trying to buy all the Canadian mines they can through a non-Jewish agent?"

Events Of The Week: A News Digest

CANADA: The Social Credit Party has the doubtful distinction of presenting the first candidate for Federal parliament who appealed to the anti-Jewish instincts of the lunatic fringe. He is Neil Carmichael of St. Paul's riding, Toronto, who last week stated that "the Rothschilds are trying to buy up Canadian businesses through non-Jewish agents." Despite the assurance by National leader Robert Thompson that Carmichael would not be an official Socred candidate if found guilty of such bias, he still rides high in his district with the blessings of the official party leadership—at least, at closing of this issue.

USSR: Despite Nikita Khrushchev's denial of anti-Semitism, matzot will not be sold in Moscow for this Passover. In New York Dr. Nahum Goldmann, president of the World Jewish Congress, in an official statement, welcomed "Mr. Khrushchev's repudiation of anti-Semitism." However, the Jewish leader added that the "fundamental problems (of Russian Jewry) remain unchanged. Religions other than Judaism are granted facilities. This difference of treatments has been a cause of anxiety to Jewish communities throughout the world."

Dr. Goldmann concluded with an appeal to the Soviet government to act in accordance with its own declared principle of equal treatment.

NEW YORK: The World Conference of Jewish Organizations, which acts as the Jewish representative in the Material Claims Against Germany, concluded its last session. It elected the following officers for one year: Dr. Nahum Goldmann, chairman; Sir Barnett Janner, Label Katz, vice chairmen. The Claims Conference decided to appeal, to the Federal German government to up the enactment of the long overdue legislation to indemnify scores of thousands of Jewish victims of Nazis. 600,000 claims are still pending. The greatest grant will be for France where over 150,000 refugees have entered in the past three years.

JERUSALEM: Israel's largest party, Mapai (Labor), and the National Religious Party (Mizrachi-Hapoel Hamizrachi) have finally agreed upon solving the chief rabbi crisis. New elections for the chief rabbinate will be held within the next three months. The agreement, a political expediency act on the part of Mapai in order to keep the coalition government from falling, has been criticized by the Jerusalem Post as a deal which will not help religion but only the Mizrachi . . Chief Rabbi Nissim opposes the agreement.

JERUSALEM: The Israeli cabinet and parliament decided to accept the Rothschild offer to initiate educational television in Israel.

NEW YORK: Yeshiva University will ordain the 714th rabbi in its history this weekend at special ceremonies during which Dr. Joseph B. Soloveichik will be the main speader.

JERUSALEM: Following the example of the Supreme Court, which ordered the Ministry of Interior to register a mixed marriage as valid, the Haifa District Court turned down a request by a German woman to annul her marriage to a Jew. Another mixed marriage conflict is brewing before the Tel Aviv Court. Orthodox circles in Israel are determined to continue their fight against the registration of civilian marriages.

JOHANNESBURG: Mr. Justice Simon Kuper of the South African Supreme Court was seriously wounded last weekend by an anonymous assailant. He is a leader of the Zionist Movement in his country.

The Golden Plan For Preventing War

If both sides, we and the Russians, could effect an agreement that neither of us would use either hydrogen or atomic or cobalt bombs in the war, but restrict ourselves simply to blockbusters, flame throwers and a few poison gas attacks, we would have an old-fashioned war over the Berlin question tomorrow.

Old-fashioned wars are the best. Men and materials are more tractable and you know when you've won and when you have lost.

Blockbuster bombing, we know, rather than demoralize the civilian population, urges it on to new inspiration and dedication. The occupants of a bunker will take their chances against the flame-thrower. It is a 50-50 chance they will get him before he gets them.

If soldiers can be taught not to discard their gas masks, they will survive any surprise gas attack, even the ones that are designed to reduce men to a comatose will-less state.

But we won't trust the Russians on such an agreement.

No, if there's a war, we will have to presume it will be a hydrogen war, which means we will have to spend long hours in practicing how to desert a city quickly and still keep our industrial potential high. This is going to cost us not only a painful inconvenience but a lot of money which is going to make those who hate high taxes unhappy.

It is for these reasons that nobody believes there will be a war over Berlin. But I am not so sure they are right. Expense and inconvenience have yet to stop a war. If there is a way to stop a war it is by the resumption of hydrogen tests by both sides and by anybody else who wants to make a bomb. It is only after a long period of hydrogen-bomb test bans that crises occur.

Only by testing the bomb every day in the week is it possible to induce some idea of the consequences it may wreak.

The bomb will go off and everybody who watches will say, "Gee whiz! Holy smoke!"

Certainly it is worth a try.

The fallout isn't pleasant, but is infinitely preferable to the explosion. My slogan, "Test the bomb of your choice every day." Can you imagine what the refugees trying to get out of New York City will do to our economy?

Slow Learner

DR. ROSE N. FRANZBLAU

QUESTION: Our son, 14, in his first year of high school, seems to have very limited powers of concentration and cannot seem to absorb his studies. He was in the slower class from the fourth grade on. His elementary school work was below average and only through paid tutoring was he able to pass and be graduated.

We try to help him with his homework every evening but we find that he doesn't seem able to absorb the major part of his studies. After repeated coaching he remembers his work only temporarily. His I.Q. test showed him to be just barely average. Even so, his teachers feel that his work should be better.

He is obedient, considerate and kind and is quite popular with youngsters his age and even somewhat older.

Perhaps trained child psychologists could help us reach our son and find out what, if anything, is interfering with his ability to concentrate. He reads comic books only in his spare time.

The only other outward sign of concern to us is that he still sucks his thumb when asleep.

ANSWER: When parents are disappointed in a child's achievement, they refuse to admit that a basic lack of ability may be responsible for it.

* * *

There comes a time when the presssure on the child must stop if he is to develop whatever potential he may have.

What has been learned about the slow learner in recent years makes the prognosis for his future adjustment a much brighter one than it used to be.

For example, the abstract concepts in a Shakespeare play could not be comprehended by such a youngster through reading. Very soon the youngster got lost in what was experienced as a forest of words and ideas.

However, seeing the same play acted out he not only follows the theme but understands the concepts that are expressed in it.

Such youngsters can learn arithmetic from going on shopping tours under the supervision of their teachers, from following the weighing, counting and measuring instructions in cooking or building things. By practical application, they are able to conceptualize intellectually.

Psychological problems are created for such children when their parents keep expecting more of them than they are capable of doing. Such expectations frighten the youngster and make him revert back to childish behavior, like thumb-sucking.

An academic high school where the pressure is too great for a boy of his capabilities can be much too competitive for him, and make him feel a failure. It is wise for such children to be enrolled in a school where they can get technical training in a field where their interest and capacities may be utilized.

Columbia University and NYU both have testing centers where the fees are reasonable and guidance is given on the basis of the findings.

Should you find this an expense which you cannot afford, then contact the office of the family service of your religious persuasion. They will make all the necessary referrals for your son and help him and your family wherever needed.

TO THE JEWISH COMMUNITY

In view of the many enquiries our office has received from members of the community who have expressed their confusion regarding the kashruth of food and kindred products, the Division of Orthodox Synagogues of the Canadian Jewish Congress wishes to advise the community at large that we cannot endorse the kashruth of food or other products which do not bear the symbol of the direct supervision and certification of our Rabbinical Vaad Hakashruth "COR," or of recognized certifications by rabbinic bodies and accredited members thereof, as follows:

- The Agudas Harabonim of the United States and Canada;
- The Chief Rabbinate of Israel;
- The Montreal Jewish Community Council ("MK");
- The Union of Orthodox Congregations of America ("U").

If there should be any further uncertainty, please contact our office.

GOODWILL WORKS

HUMAN RIGHTS IN ONTARIO

The Ontario Human Rights Commission now can record with satisfaction an important settlement in the field of discrimination. We refer to the highly important but very little publicized apartment house case in Windsor, Ont.

An Indonesian student, Tie Khouw, filed complaints that the Wonsch Construction Company had denied him accomodations on the basis of his color. The Commission interceded through its lawyer, Charles L. Dubin, Q.C., and succeeded in reaching a satisfactory agreement wherby the construction company undertakes to comply fully with the Ontario Human Rights Code in the future. Also the Ontario Human Rights Code will be placed conspicuously in every apartment building owned by the company.

Thus, without the embarrassment of a public hearing, the Commission and the Wonsch Company have demonstrated that good will and peaceful arrangements often can help solve the most intricate problems.

LAUDABLE INITIATIVE

BOOK OF REMEMBRANCE

Toronto's Council of Fraternal Organizations for Histadrut should be commended for its initiative in presenting a Book of Remembrance of the martyred Jewish communities of Eastern Europe to a museum in Israel. Only last Saturday in the synagogue, on the Sabbath of Remembrance, we all read the biblical injunction, Not To Forget Amalek.

Maimonides, in his profound and divinely inspired wisdom, defines the command — to remember Amalek and to erase Amalekism from the face of the earth — as incumbent upon all generations in Israel. Amalek should never be forgotten.

We are convinced that Toronto's Histadrut committee, in its laudable initiative, does not consider such a book of remembrance an item to be filed in a museum. Rather it should inspire all of us to some soul searching and deep concentration upon the true meaning of the mitzva, never to forget Amalek.

Again, in the words of Maimonides, this command demands the heart and soul.

IN MEMORIAM

DR. ISIDORE GOLDSTICK

There were too few Isidore Goldsticks in our midst. This modest, retiring person with the gentle voice and quiet scholarly ways had been one of the few true gentlemen our community was privileged to count among its own.

Isidore Goldstick left the Czarist-controlled province of Kurland early enough to absorb fully the culture and civilization of North America. Not only did he retain the essence of Jewish-vitality which Eastern Europe provided so bountifully but he fertilized and cultivated Jewishness in all its aspects — cultural, spiritual, and ethical — in his career in this land.

A lover of literature, he was at home with Schiller, Shakespeare, and Molière. Also was he equally familiar with Bialik and Sholom Aleichem (whose works he translated into English). He possessed that rare gift, an aptitude and a grasp for style in writing, that, as the French say, marked the man.

A lover of Zion and his fellowman, he will be missed by all.

AN HISTORIC JUDGEMENT

MR. KEILLER MACKAY

When His Excellency Keiller MacKay hands over his reins of office to his successor in the near future, not only will Ontario lose a faithful and distinguished servant but our Jewish community will lose a loyal and sincere friend.

As a member of the judiciary before his elevation to the post of Her Majesty's representative in the province, Mr. Justice MacKay (as he was then known) gave ample evidence of both his farsightedness as a jurist and his basic human qualities of sensitivity and warmth. His decision in 1945 in the "Drummond Wren case" always will be remembered as a call to square the law with justice. Five years before Ontario altered its legislation to this effect, Mr. MacKay stated that it was incompatible with his understanding of the law for people to have the right to insert a clause in property covenants forbidding persons of particular birth, ancestry or religion from buying, using or inheriting such property.

It is true, a few years later another member of the Ontario bench disagreed with this verdict. But the sequel was that, when this second case (that of Noble and Wolf, brought by Mr. Bernard Wolf of London (Ontario) eventually came before the highest court of the land ,in essence the initial judgment of Mr. MacKay was upheld and for practical purposes the racial restrictive covenant was outlawed from this date.

Canada in general and Canadian Jewry in particular owe a great deal to Mr. MacKay. We wish him many more years of life, health and happiness.

OUR DUTY

WE ARE OUR BROTHER'S KEEPER

Speaking last week at Toronto's impressive UJA opening dinner, Chairman, Ray D. Wolfe made some pertinent remarks.

Here are several reminders to our community:

- To raise three-million-three-hundred-thousand dollars from ninety thousand Jewish citizens of Toronto involves the covering of thousands of cards by hundreds of workers. It also demands a skilled professional staff. But most important of all, it presupposes the generous support of the entire community.
- During the past two months there were occasions when this campaign looked like a contest between the campaign chairman and the community. However, it is slowly becoming a total community effort. As it gathers impetus, the power and dedication of a community united towards a single goal are thrilling and challenging.
- In this busy metropolis there are thousands of Jews ignorant of the needs of Moroccan, Tunisian, Algerian and Eastern European Jews as well as of the tasks at home. A thick wall of insulation surrounds too many of our people. A hardening of the conscience a tendency to rationalize responsibility vis-a-vis our fellow man seem to result from the newly attained success in this country.
- This tendency to resist involvement in the troubles of our brethren is a malady we cannot endure.
- Too many have forgotten the lesson of pre-war Germany.
- Too many feel that, with the establishment of the State of Israel, the job is done.
- The job is not done. Whether one is a penniless, homeless, Roumanian refugee stranded in a transit camp in Vienna or a newly arrived Moroccan on relief in Toronto — he is our brother — our future.

U.S. Jewish Unity

This is the height of the "Jewish season" and there is another flurry of the hoary, stereotype pleas for unity and one representative address for American Jewry. The Zionists, the defence organisations, the educational groups — all and every body goes on record in praise of unity.

When everything is said for good intentions there looms the reality that every U.S.A. Jewish group defines "unity" as "the imperative need" of "others" to merge with the organisation campaigning for union and concerted action at the moment.

It does not occur to any of those singing the praises of unity that, maybe, they themselves should make a start. Whenever a suggestion along these lines is made, there are protests of indignation that unity does not mean that those who advocate it should "liquidate" their own organisation.

Although lip-service to Jewish unity is fervent, "vital affairs affecting the whole of Jewry have become a matter of private enterprise", according to Mr. Bernard G. Richards, the peppery 86-year-old director of the Jewish Information Bureau and one of the founders of the American Jewish Congress.

The trouble, Mr. Richards says, is that everybody is trying to do everything at the same time and with complete disregard for coordination and the larger aims. As a result, Mr. Richards charges, "every large or central organisation has, by this time, protested against the Soviet suppression of Judaism, against the Arab boycott of Jewish businesses and against anti-semitism in South America."

Action is being taken on nearly everything and delegations are always going somewhere. "But", Mr. Richards states, "all this is done without consultation amongst the respective organisations and without consideration of the effects and consequences on the Jewish community here and abroad."

A New Yorker for almost sixty years, Mr. Richards thinks that the metropolis has the worst record of local Jewish competitiveness. "Here even the Rabbis are in politics," he complains. "The New York Board of Rabbis, with high motives, is competing with the American Jewish Congress, the American Jewish Committee and B'nai B'rith in several areas." As for the New York Federation of Jewish Charities, Mr. Richards charges that while avowing the highest motives and noblest intentions, it functions as sort of a rich men's club "without any apparent expectation of gaining the participation of the larger constituency of the community".

Fund-Raising

The heavy cloud of U.S.A. Jewish duplication and disunity has, however, a silver lining: united fund-raising by the Jewish Federations. In his recent history of the Jewish Federation movement, "A Heritage Confirmed", Harry L. Lurie, another distinguished veteran of the U.S.A. Jewish community, defines the Jewish Federation as "primarily and essentially a continuing project to collect funds on a city-wide (or larger metropolitan or regional) area from Jewish contributors for the purpose of supporting a group of beneficiary welfare agencies and welfare programmes.

"The Federation's important contribution to Jewish unity is," according to Mr. Lurie, "that it combines in a single agency functions of local Jewish responsibility for local, national and overseas Jewish organised welfare."

Duplication

There is the persistent American Jewish pattern that all organisations that came into being as "consultative" and "summit" bodies turn eventually into independent organisations with sovereign identities and programmes, at least "de facto". Thus, the American Jewish Congress, which originally was a congress of Jewish organisations, has over the years become "another" membership organisation, whilst the American Zionist Council, projected as a coordinating agency, now is "another" Zionist organisation duplicating the activities of its constituents. According to the same pattern, the National Community Relations Advisory Council (NACRAC), which was meant to co-ordinate defence and civil rights activities is now, to all intents and purposes, "another" defence agency.

Not the least costly aberration in terms of wasted funds and human resources, are the intramural rivalries and the duplication of projects in many large U.S.A. Jewish organisations whose various departments function in studied isolation and "autonomously." In most U.S.A. national Jewish organisations, the right hand doesn't know what the left hand is doing — or does not want to know. Yet, the budget comes from the same treasury.

The ravages of the "departmental autonomy" also plague B'nai B'rith, whose official magazine, "The National Jewish Monthly", must receive payment for advertisements of the organisation's departments. As a result, tens of thousands of B'nai B'rith members, including officers of Lodges and Chapters, have never heard about Camp B'nai B'rith and the B'nai B'rith Adult Education Institutes whose budgets provide only for small-size advertisements which do not "hit the eye" with the force of large display announcements.

The Late Isidore Goldstick

A distinguished Canadian Jewish pedagogue died in London, Ontario, last week. Hundreds of Jews and Gentiles from all parts of the province gathered to pay their last respects to Isidore Yitzhaq Goldstick, D.Paed., who died at the age of 72 after a useful and creative career. A teacher by profession, he taught modern languages in the city's high schools for more than 40 years, having started in 1917 (he was the first Jew to teach in a high school in Ontario, possibly in Canada).

Isidore Goldstick, born in the Baltic province of Kurland (later, part of Latvia) came to Toronto at the age of 13. He graduated from the University of Toronto with first class honours in French and German in 1913, studied at Kingston and received his MA in 1915. For two years he was senior master in languages at Toronto's fashionable prep school, Upper Canada College, after which he moved to London. In 1928 he acquired his Doctorate in pedagogy.

As teacher and editor of six text books in French and German, Dr. Goldstick was known in his profession and by thousands of ex-pupils. He was active in his profession and in the Modern Language Association.

As a Jew Isidor Goldstick shared his interest between the cloistered study and the busy committee room and conference hall. An early Zionist, he served on the national executive committee of the Zionist Organization of Canada as early as 1919. In that same year he attended the first conference of the Canadian Jewish Conference in Montreal (he is plainly noticed in the familiar group photograph of that assembly taken in front of the old Baron de Hirsch Institute). Also he was founding president of London Lodge B'nai Br'ith No. 1012 and was president in 1930-1 of the old Canadian Conference of B'nai B'rith (predecessor of the present Eastern Canadian Council B'nai B'rith).

To some Isidore Goldstick was best known as a scholar and Jewish author. He published a translation of Sholem Aleichem, called "In Kasrilevka;" he accumulated a collection of sayings entitled, "Yiddish Proverbs" (published by Schocken), and translated the poems of Yehoash. In addition, several years ago he wrote a perceptive and absorbing history of London's Jewish community which was included in a Canadian Jewish Congress survey.

Dr. Goldstick leaves two married daughters and his widow, Anna, the daughter of the late Ben Zion Nathanson, a pioneer Toronto Hebrew teacher (principal of the old Simcoe Street Talmud Torah). His older brother Morris predeceased him in 1960. He leaves a brother Edward and three sisters in Toronto: Mrs. Constam, Mrs. Lindgren; and Mrs. Dorothy Dworkin, well known community worker.

African On Beverly Street

Aleyideino Habila is the name of a tall (over six feet) Nigerian who, for the last few weeks, has been a familiar figure, what with his flowing white robes and multicoloured West African yarmulka, in the corridors of the Toronto Jewish Family and Child Service. Mr. Habila is the Deputy Minister of Welfare for Nigeria. He has been in Canada since last May, carrying on a study of welfare programes in this country which, he hopes, will serve him on his return to Nigeria, now an independent member of the Commonwealth. He has been making a special study of the Jewish Family and Child Service since family and child welfare will be his special concern when he returns to Northern Nigeria, his area of responsibility.

This Nigerian social worker speaks all three of Nigeria's main languages plus 14 of its local languages (which are not dialects but separate tongues). In addition he speaks English, Danish and a little German. He is a Lutheran Christian, his father having been converted in a Danish Lutheran Mission in that country. (Continued page 12)

KHRUSCHEV STATEMENT AGAINST ANTISEMITISM

MOSCOW (Special to The Canadian Jewish News). N.S. Khrushchov, Chairman of the USSR Council of Ministers, has received a letter from Bertrand Russell, prominent British philosopher. The full text of N.S. Khrushchov's reply to Bertrand Russell follows:

Esteemed Mr. Bertrand Russell,

I have received your letter in which you express alarm over the fact that among those who have lately been punished under the laws of the Soviet Union for committing crimes, termed in the Western press as "economic crimes", there are people of the Jewish nationality. Some people in the West qualify this as a manifestation of anti-semitism. I must tell you frankly that I was surprised by such a conclusion. It is the result of a profound delusion.

In the past few months the Western bourgeois press is again clamouring about the so-called anti-semitism in the USSR. With full responsibility for my words I declare that this is a crude concoction, a vicious calumny on the Soviet people, on our country. Ever the bourgeois press itself admits that there were people of most diverse nationalities among those convicted in the USSR for the so-called "economic crimes". And this is really so. People who are misappropriating public values, who are living idly at the expense of the work of other people are convicted in our country in strict conformity with the existing legislation. The punishment for every one of those who have committed this or that crime is determined by the nature of their particular crime and, of course, has nothing to do with their nationality.

What are such people punished for in the USSR? First of all, for vicious speculation, for stealing the people's property. Indeed, Soviet laws severely punish for such crimes that encroach on the economic foundations of our system. These laws, reflecting the will of the Soviet people, are existing now for a long time, from the first years of the existence of the Soviet state. They are well known to the entire population and are approved by it. They express the morals of the new, socialist society.

Every state has its legislation. Our Soviet state also has its laws that are based on socialist morals. What is often regarded in bourgeois society as valiant is rejected by our morals and condemned by our laws. For example, it is not customary in bourgeois society to show interest in how and where from money has been accumulated. This, you see, is considered to be the private affair of the one who has made this capital. But this capital is made by means of exploiting, robbing millions of people, and sometimes even by way of murder and other crimes. In such a society a person possessing capital enjoys respect no matter how he made his money. Their principle is: a thief not caught is no thief. But even when such a thief is caught red-handed he is not often put in prison. More often than not this case even does not reach court, because a person with money has his men among those who are called upon to control the observance of law.

I do not doubt that you know very well of such facts that are born by a drive for profit, the cynical power of money.

In a word, the capitalist world has its laws, against which our people had struggled until they scored a victory and founded new laws meeting the interests of the working people. Our morals and our laws are based on other principles. The morals of our society are the morals of the working people. He who does not work, neither shall he eat — such are our morals. Our state, our society, with the help of laws, protects honest working people from parasites, from idlers who trample upon the morals of socialist society and want to live by robbing others, or by appropriating, through dishonest machinations, the values in creating which they have not taken part. Such people are prosecuted by law in accordance with the principles of the morals based on labour. It is my conviction that these are the only fair and most just morals.

The robber, the exploiter also believes that he works, but his "work" is directed towards using the fruit of other people's labour in the best way. But we recognize and respect only such labour which creates values for people, in other words — useful labour, and the so-to-say "labour" of the speculators, thieves, speculators in currency, grafters and the like is nothing but social parasitism, an activity harmful for the environment, for society.

The capitalist world, naturally, does not want to understand us, does not share our philosophy or our morals. The philosophy and morals of the socialist society do not fit in with the concepts and standards customary for the bourgeois society. We are not surprised by this, because our system, the socialist system, is the antipode and opposite to the capitalist system, its morals and its laws which permit some people to live at the expense of the labour of others, to lead a parasitic life, which permits the strong to rob the weak.

It is well known that bourgeois propaganda often resorts to slander and falsification in order to vilify our socialist system, our morals. In an effort to vilify our system and its laws, they often resort to such a method as to ascribe to them ill-intentionally the features allegedly directed against a definite nationality—the Jewish. But this is easily refuted by facts.

It is not difficult to find proof even in the materials of trials published in newspapers that among the persons, punished by our courts for what is called "economic crimes", including those sentenced to capital punishment, there are Russians and Jews, Georgians and Ukrainians, Byelorussians and people of other nationalities.

In short, these decisions of the courts are directed not against people of a definite nationality, but against crimes and those who commit them, irrespective of their nationality. Among which nation at this or that time there are more or less criminals of one kind or another is a social and not a national question.

We do our utmost in order to get rid of crimes, get rid of them not by means of judicial and administrative measures based on laws, but through educating and re-educating the people who committed crimes. Such is our purpose. Everyone who wants to study our society and our legislation without bias, will see that there is no legislation more just than ours, because in our country it is the people who create the laws in order to protect themselves, their society, their labour, to safeguard their security.

We appreciate, Mr. Russell, your friendly sentiments for our country, we understand that your letter has been prompted by humanitarian considerations. But humanity is inconceivable without justice. And it is precisely in the interests of justice that our people must punish those who want to live at the expense of others, to pillage our society.

The attempts by reactionary propaganda to impute a policy of anti-semitism or encouraging it to our state is not a new feature. The class enemies in the past, too, more than once, resorted to such slander against our reality, against our system. There was no and there is no policy of anti-semitism in the Soviet Union, since the very nature of our multinational socialist state precludes the possibility of such a policy. Our constitution proclaims the equality of the citizens of the USSR irrespective of their nationality and race and declares that "any advocacy of racial or national exclusiveness or hatred or contempt is punishable by law".

The motto of our society reads: man is to man a friend, comrade and brother. And we have always educated and educate the Soviet people in a spirit of friendship and brotherhood of all peoples, in a spirit of intolerance for national and racial enmity. You may rest assured that we shall continue to do this with utmost persistence and consistence.

Respectfully yours,
N. Khrushchov

SERMON OF THE WEEK

THE DIMENSION OF FAITH

The law of the Red Heifer is one of the strangest rites of the Bible. Although its purpose is manifest, namely, to cleanse those who become defiled by contact with the dead, the extraordinary rites connected with the observance is a challenge to the rational mind. The rabbis readily conceded the essentially incomprehensible character of the ritual; indeed, they underscored it.

It is true that subsequent generations of interpreters sought to find symbols in the mysterious precepts entwining the statute of the red heifer; but these are obvious efforts to give meaning to that which is apparently meaningless. It is an endeavour that, "mutatis mutandis," we find in every epoch of Jewish history, to wit, the attempt to harmonize faith with the prevailing concepts of the day; as each phase of "modernity" becomes obsolete, new interpretations are offered of the sacred texts and traditions, but the religious framework remains unchanged. This truth has been beautifully expressed in Ahad ha-Am's brief but immortal essay, "Between the Holy and the Profane".

Yet the harmonizers never succeeded in elucidating the mystery of the red heifer; it remained, seemingly, what the Bible and the rabbis intended it to be: an inexplicable injunction. Now in other religions this might have aroused little attention. There are cults to this day that thrive on the incomprehensible. The less understandable the phenomenon, the greater is the miracle. "It is certain", Tertullian argues, "because it is impossible."

But Judaism is essentially the rationalist among the world's religions. The Bible is the great iconoclast that shattered the grotesque idolatrous mythologies of the ancient world; the Maimonidean trend to rationalize Scripture is much older than the author of "The Guide for the Perplexed", and has had countless imitators in succeeding generations. Rationalism, in truth, is an integral element of Judaism in all ages, despite not a few obvious but ephemeral deviations. What then is the fundamental significance of the decree of the Red Heifer in Jewish theology?

The answer is no less challenging than the question, and the lesson is one particularly needed by the contemporary world. The human mind has achieved miracles in its quest of knowledge; but there are limits to its powers. The finite can never completely comprehend the Infinite, nor the human the Divine. It is a humbling thought for an overweening generation that has entered the space age; but its truth is irrefutable. Nevertheless there lies at the core of it not a moral of despair but of hope. Where science ends religion begins. The gulf between man and God is unbridgeable by human reason; but faith gives us wings, and in one supreme existential flight or leap we can cross the void of our limitations and become aware of the spiritual dimension, which transcends time and space and reaches out to the very throne of God.

The statute of the red heifer is, in its ultimate analysis, the most rational of all the precepts. It points to the mystery of the unknowable, and enables us, in the dimension of faith, to purify death's defilement and attain to life eternal.

TRAGEDY OF JEWISH COMMUNISTS: CONFUSED, BETRAYED, DISUNITED

LONDON, (JCNFS) — Ever since the Russian Revolution, Moscow has been able to claim that it was the sole authoritative interpreter of Marxist-Leninism. With the exception of Yugoslavia in 1948 and, more recently, Albania, Communist Parties all over the world always followed the concepts and policy laid down by the Kremlin. Now, however, the situation has radically changed.

The growing ideological feud between Moscow and Peking has posed Communist Parties not under Russia or China's immediate control with a problem. In Europe, Asia and America, they now have to choose — and soon — which of the two contesting forces they are going to side with.

Despite all the frantic efforts to paper over the rift, everyone now admits that there is no longer one all-embracing Communist ideal. The myth of the Communist monolith grappling with the capitalist world is dead. Communist leaders in Britain, France, Italy, the U.S.A. and, particularly Israel must choose which of the two roads they are going to take if they want to retain support of their followings.

This is especially true of Jewish Communists. However blindly they may have followed the Moscow line in the past some groups among them have shown an increasing sensitiveness to two major aspects of the Kremlin's policy; Russia's treament of its Jews and its attack on Israel, the Jewish State. This sensitivenes goes back ten years or more.

The author, JOEL CANG, is one of Britain's foremost experts on Communism and Eastern Europe

As far as Russia's treatment of her Jewish minority is concerned, the native Jewish Communists suffered in silence, but leading Jewish Communists in the outside world openly expressed their disappointment and shock. As soon as Stalin's treatment of the Jews after the end of the war became known, especially his brutal shooting of Jewish writers and poets, Jewish Communists began leaving the Party in protest.

Here in London, one of the most notable Party figures, Professor Hyman Levy, resigned after a visit to Moscow to investigate the position of the Jews in Russia. He had found it to be highly unsatisfactory, he said on his return. The years between 1948 and 1952 were really "black years", Professor Levy reported, with Jews being thrown out of their jobs, Jewish intellectuals being arrested and deported, and other "criminal acts" being committed.

Professor Levy and some others had left the Communist Party as a result of a rational examination of Khruschev's Jewish policy. Howard Fast in America made a more dramatic and emotional exit.

For nearly a generation, Fast had been the leading intellectual figure of American Communism. In Russia too, his popularity was enormous and his plays and other writings sold millions of copies throughout the Soviet Union. But, after Khruschev's "secret" speech to the 20th Party Congress and the revelation of the liquidation of Jewish culture in Russia, Fast left the Party with a demonstrative eclat that echoed through the entire Communist movement.

Khruschev's speech and the revelations it contained filled Fast ..with .."disgust" he wrote. "It is a strange and awful document itemising a record of barbarism and paranoiac blood lust that will be a lasting and shameful memory to civilised man". He felt, said Fast, a "spiritual emptiness" at having 'supported and even defended this murderous blood bath."

Even in some of the satellite countries, Jewish Communists spoke out at what had happened. In Warsaw, for instance, the Yiddish-language Folk-Sztyme", mouthpiece of the Communist Party in Poland, was the first paper to publish the truth about Stalin's treatment of Russian Jewry.

One of the members of the editorial board also made an outspoken protest against the "truncated manner" in which the official Soviet Encyclopedia covered the subject of "Yevrey", the Jew. Another leading Warsaw Communist, Miss Lilly Berger, warned the Kremlin that "assimilation is no cure against antisemitism".

In Canada, I. B. Salzberg, a former Member of the Ontario Parliament and the country's outstanding Communist, made no attempt to hide his anger, bitterness and shame, and his example was followed by others.

As all these facts illustrate, some Jewish Communists have been unable to remain indifferent to the fate of the Jews in Russia. However, many still prefer to shut their eyes to the truth. They will, no doubt, make every effort to explain away the Kremlin's anti-Jewish measures, even the latest death sentences for alleged economic offences.

They will try to rationalize the Sino-Soviet conflict as well, although here there are some signs that doubt is beginning to creep in. 'Pravda's' now-famous article attacking Peking, which appeared towards the end of last year, was quoted only briefly in some Jewish Communist papers, while others made no mention of it at all.

According to the Soviet Press, just over two-thirds of the fraternal delegates attending the recent Party Congressses in Bulgaria, Czechoslovakia ,Hungary and East Germany, and representing Communist Parties in some 80 countries, came down wholeheartedly on the side of Moscow in its dispute with Peking.

Israeli Communists, to whom the feud represents a greater challenge than those of many other countries, were represented at some of these gatherings, but how they voted is not yet known.

Nevertheless, they will soon have to take a public stand on the issues. Can they go on supporting Moscow without risking the vote of their Jewish supporters? How much longer can they go on trying to explain Khruschev's attacks on Israel, his boycott of Israeli goods, his opportunistic policies, his constant praise of Arab authoritarian regimes, without making themselves look ridiculous?

Dr. Moshe Sneh, leader of the Israel Communist Party, never too popular in Moscow because of his Zionist past, is said to be losing in popularity. The same may soon be true of those who come after him. If Russia maintains her anti-Israel, pro-Arab policy, which appears certain, it is doubtful whether Israel's Communists at the next election will receive even the 4,000 votes they received at the last one.

Meanwhile, it is no secret that the number of Jews in the Communist Parties of America, Canada and France is declining. Of the 30,000 members lost to the French Communist Party during the last twelve months (a figure reported at its February meeting) a fair proportion are said to be Jews.

The number of Jewish Communists has steadily declined since the war but there is still a Jewish Press - a daily in Paris, another in New York, some periodicals elsewere. Up to now, their inspiration has always come from Moscow. But if Russia does not change her policy towards her Jewish minority and Israel, the number of Jewish members of Communist Parties continue to declide.

BUDAPEST RADIO REPORTS VISIT OF JEWISH LEADER TO ENGLAND, WEST

Budapest, (JCNS) Dr. E. Sos, the President of the Board of Deputies of Hungarian Jews, declared himself completely satisfied with his visit to Great Britain in an interview on Budapest radio.

He and his companions had been accorded "a very cordial welcome" wherever they went in Britain, he said, and they had been particularly pleased to have the opportunity of meeting such Anglo-Jewish leaders as Sir Barnett Janner, Mr. Israel Sieff, Lady Reading and Mr. David Kessler.

The group had told "large audiences how several hundred thousand Jews had been saved by the Soviet Army ... and how the Hungarian People's Democracy gave freedom of religion and equality of rights to all Jews . . ." ....

Few people in England knew much about Hungary's economic development or cultural progress, Dr. Sos continued, but there was growing interest in visiting the country. British-Jewish leaders had promised to return the Hungarian-Jewish group's visit this year, which would give "us an opportunity to show them the life and institutions of Hungarian Jews," Dr. Sos concluded.

His companions on his visit to England were Dr. Imre Benoschofsky, Deputy Chief Rabbi of Hungary, and Dr. Geza Seifert.

VOCATIONAL SERVICE HERE HELPS MANY NEW CITIZENS

In 1962, about 1,800 persons were served by Toronto's Jewish Vocational Service through its comprehensive program of vocational counselling, placement, training and rehabilitation services, it was announced last week by Marvin Fremes, JVS president.

About one-third of the total placement activity was on behalf of new Canadians, he said. A total of 522 registrations were made by newcomers, which was 30% of the overall volume, resulting in 426 referrals to jobs and 214 placements.

HELPING NEW CANADIANS

"These figures," he stated, "do not include placements secured through other channels following counselling and advisory services offered by our staff."

JVS services to new immigrants are financed by grants from the United Jewish Relief Agencies, a beneficiary of the Toronto United Jewish Appeal.

With special services geared to their needs, new Canadians are helped to establish themselves in suitable work, according to Milton Friedman, executive director of the JVS.

"Our primary purpose is to find jobs for newcomers," he explained. "In order to place them, however, we must first determine how the newcomer's skills and training fit into the Canadian labor market. This entails careful study of the work history, experience and aptitudes of the newcomer."

"We are able to place virtually all newcomers with reasonably marketable skills and a large proportion of the unskilled who do not have multiple handicaps, and our follow-up shows that the employers' experience with newcomers has been excellent," Mr. Friedman pointed out.

NEED ADVICE, GUIDANCE

He noted that the newcomer is handicapped by lack of language facility, no training relatable to the Canadian labor market, being in middle or old age, and some suffer from emotional or physical illness or a combination of these factors.

"A newcomer who is handicapped must receive counselling to show him what kind of job he realistically might be expected to obtain, and in some cases retraining is necessary to teach him new skills," Mr. Friedman explained.

"There is no complacency at the JVS about these hard-to-place individuals, because they comprise the hard core of our clients who are still unemployed," Mr. Fremes said.

The JVS maintains an active job promotion program among employers. It issues a personnel bulletin regularly, listing some of the applicants who are available, and board members are active in contacting employers. "Meet the Applicant" panels are held in which small groups of employers are invited to meet and talk with job applicants who might fill their personnel needs.

In addition, JVS recently started a rehabilitation workshop especially to assist the long-term unemployed in acquiring skills that would help them get jobs. These people all are held back in finding employment because they have a combination of handicaps, and they have become chronically dependent on welfare payments and other financial assistance.

"We hope our effort, which is financed by a foundation grant, will prove effective in reducing welfare costs associated with hard-to-place new Canadians and local people," Mr. Fremes said.

EMPLOYMENT DIFFICULTIES

In reporting on the work of JVS for 1962, Mr. Friedman said of the entire 800 persons who sought the assistance of JVS last year, about 400 came for vocational counselling—that is, for assistance in charting their life's work, consulting about training courses and seeking a path to advancement. Most of these individuals were teen-agers, but the number of young adults and middle-aged persons rose sharply over 1961, Mr. Friedman reported.

The remainder came seeking employment, he stated. "These persons also received counselling to ensure that their objectives are realistic, that their attitudes toward work are positive and conducive to success. Most had much to offer to business and industry. Some had trouble finding employers who would give them a chance to demonstrate their abilities, because age and language limitations were their major difficulties."

As for results, Mr. Friedman reported that 630 placements resulted from 1,208 referrals made by JVS counsellors to 1,769 job openings registered by employers. The ratio of placements to applicants, which was nearly one to two, is considered good, he said, especially in the light of technological changes, market fluctuations and prejudice against the middle-aged and older workers which characterize our economy and manpower situation.

A GIVEAWAY

A blind beggar stood on the street holding out his little tin cup.

"Help a blind man!" he whined.

An old Jewish woman hobbled by.

"Look — a poor blind man!" she commiserated, and gave him a dime.

The beggar was enraptured. "As soon as I took the first look at you I knew you had a kind heart!"

CERTAIN CURE

A schnorrer came to a large city and went to see a rich man for alms. The servants, however, would not let him in for the rich man lay gravely ill.

"I know a cure for the sick man," said the schnorrer.

So they let him in.

"I have a sure cure for you," said the schnorrer to the sick man. "But I want to be well rewarded for it."

"What's the cure?" asked the rich man.

"Move to Kolomea right away!"

"What's so good about Kolomea? Are there big doctors there."

"No, not at all. But, you see, I come from Kolomea and, in the memory of the oldest inhabitant there, no rich man has ever died in Kolomea!"

ONE INTERPRETATION

A forty-year-old man married a girl of twenty. It caused a sensation in their social circle. Once when someone hinted at the difference in their ages, he replied, "It's really not so bad. When she looks at me she feels ten years older, and when I look at her I feel ten years younger. So what's wrong — we're both thirty!"

RECIPE OF THE WEEK

MILK-BAKED WHITE FISH

- ½ cup chopped onion
- 1 cup sliced fresh or canned mushrooms
- ¼ cup butter
- 2 tablespoons chopped parsley
- Pinch crushed basil
- 1 cup milk
- 1½ teaspoons salt
- 3 pounds white fish steaks

Saute onion and mushrooms in butter until golden brown. Add parsley basil, milk, salt and pepper. Place fish in buttered baking dish. Pour milk over mixture, sprinkle with paprika. Bake in moderate oven, 350 degrees, 45 minutes, basting occasionally with milk sauce. Serves 4-6.

The doctor said: one meal a day — he didn't say anything about nighttime . . .

NEIL CARMICHAEL

"Yes, I said that," he stated, "and it was quoted from something I read about a year ago in the morning paper. I don't recall the exact date, but I'm very careful about quotes. It was something about the fact that this was the first time the Rothschilds put a non-Jewish person in charge of their Canadian mining interests — Rio Tinto. But I didn't intend that to be anti-Semitic", he emphasized again.

"And, you still don't plan to take court action for libel," I asked.

"The way they put things, I wouldn't have a leg to stand on in court. They say, "I suggested", NOT that "I stated". And I always remember what my father told me years ago, "Stay clear of the courts," he always warned me."

"Don't you trust the judges in this country?"

"Well, it's not the judges so much as the lawyers. They twist things around."

In reply to my mention of the statement by Richard Day condemning Mr. Carmichael's alleged views, he dismissed these as "the opinions of a young kind who just wants to get his name in the paper. He's only been in the party for a year — what does he know. We hope he does resign, we'll be glad to get rid of him."

A check through the files at "The Globe and Mail" failed to turn up the article from which Mr. Carmichael thought he had taken his quote. There was however, one clipping (dated February 1962) that mentioned the merger of Rio Tinto with a British Company — Consolidated Zinc Corporation — although no mention was made of the racial origin of the President of Con. Zinc.

* * *

My final call — to check on the reporter who covered the original meeting. He was Mr. Al Wharson, an experienced, respected, capable newspaperman with an impeccable reputation for factual reporting.

An interesting complex of academic questions emerges from all this. If, as he twice told me, Mr. Carmichael did NOT recall mentioning "non Jewish agent", could it perhaps have been just a slip of the tongue, or a Freudian lapse? Is it perhaps, because of his limited formal education, somewhat naive in his approach to events? If, as he also contends, he DID make the statement (but with no antisemitic intent) where is the unassailable proof? And IF it exists, why is this noteworthy information for a political audience that a business enterprise owned by Jews happens to have a non-Jewish employee? OR, as Shakespeare once put it, "Methinks he doth protest too much".

SISTERHOOD, WOMEN'S DIVISION COOPERATE

Response has been heartening to the first efforts for co-operation between Sisterhoods and the Women's Division campaign of the United Jewish Appeal of Toronto, it was reported this week by Mrs. Samuel Z. Donnenfield and Mrs. Alvin B. Rosenberg, co-chairmen of Sisterhood Liaison of the Women's Division.

The sisterhood of Adath Israel congregation was the first in Metropolitan Toronto who invited the Women's Division to present a program. At a sisterhood meeting on Tuesday, Mrs. Ray D. Wolfe, chairman of the Women's Division Speakers' Bureau discussed the needs of the 1963 UJA drive. Other programs will be sponsored in April by the sisterhoods of Holy Blossom Temple and B'nai Israel Beth David. The co-chairmen stated, this is the first year a program of Sisterhood-Women's Division cooperation has been put into effect. The results, they said, are "gratifying".

Sisterhoods represented at an initial organizing meeting recently were: Holy Blossom, B'nai Israel Beth David, Beth Tzedec, Adath Israel, Shaarei Shomayim and Beth Sholom.

SOLILOQUY

By RUTHIE

Last Rosh Hashana I firmly decided that, come Passover, I'll observe the holiday at a resort, away from home. Well, it's a good thing I didn't specify which Passover. I'm not a liar and I can still hope. This Pesach, however, it won't be; that I can see.

* * *

Actually, Ned and I were toying with the idea of a vacation at a time when it would do me some good. But when we sat down to figure out finances, it became a horse of another color.

Fare, okay; clothing for the children, alright (they'd be a part of camp outfits); hotel rate, naturally; tips, of course. So, what stopped us? You guessed it — me.

All I wanted were a couple of measly cocktail dresses, some slack sets, a white fox stole for my shoulders if I happened to sit in a draft during dinner (and not mink either; I'm considerate, it doesn't have to cost a thousand dollars), and accessories to go with that.

So Ned almost had a stroke.

"Your clothes closet is so loaded, you couldn't even stick a pin in if you tried."

"I'm not entitled, like everybody else? What's the matter, I'm a step-child? Don't you want to be proud of me?"

"I'm always proud of you. But what do you think, I'm Rockefeller?"

And he's right. I'm never denied anything within Ned's power to provide. But I wanted to be unreasonable — just once. After all, if you're having a vacation, you want something new and extravagant. How often do you splurge?

"Okay, wise guy. If I can't have what I want, we'll stay home."

"So we'll stay home."

"Would your rather I get sick and then you'll have a doctor-bill?"

"God's with you, you won't get sick."

"Oh, no?" I retorted.

* * *

Which brings us up-to-date. Now that Purim is over, I'm thinking of giving myself a head start. I want to have everything ready, down to the last spoon and last order, by a week before Pesach at the latest. Because a brainstorm has hit me.

That last week I can spend thinking about how to land in the hospital for a good rest. I've come to the conclusion that that's the only place I'll have a holiday cheap.

We have hospitalization and we belong to Medicare — no bills. And where else can I lie in bed for as long as I wish and be served three meals a day?

The tough part is, I can't think of what could happen to me and yet shouldn't hurt. Any bone I break will be excrutiatingly painful; my appendix was removed years ago and I don't care for any other kind of operation; having babies isn't particularly funny.

* * *

Anyway, God shouldn't punish me for having such ideas.

Let Passover come once a month even. I'll make the knaidlakh; I'll fry the matza brei; I'll make pans and pans of hremzlakh; I'll eat hard boiled eggs and dunk matza into coffee till they come out of my ears.

The main thing is, if we're all healthy, then I'm happy.

By special request we are undergoing Plastic Surgery for a new face lift. The 1963 model will be shown as soon as the bandages are removed. It has also been suggested that our music would benefit by surgery, but we're certain nobody can repair what we've already mutilated. Here's some exciting news. Just heard we've been nominated for an ACADEMY AWARD as the crummiest band of 1962. With our personality and Mahzel we just can't miss. This past winter has been an extremely busy one for us. Not with music, but shovelling snow. We now have our own shovels. We hope the grass cutting season will be as successful.... Because of the current holidays we are unable to accept any immediate engagements. Our boys will be found at all leading bakeries, washing and sorting poppy seeds for Haman Tashan With such versatility our reputation has spread far and wide. We have just been promised a Command performance at Kingston Penitentiary.... unless we agree to stop playing permanently. For visitors pass call.

SENSATION IN BERLIN THEATRE

LATE POPE PIUS XII DEPICTED AS NAZI ALLY

By H. NEUERBOURG

BERLIN. — A play which accuses the late Pope Pius XII of failing to denounce Nazi crimes against Jews has stirred a controversy in Germany.

The play is "Der Stellvertreter" — "The Vicar of Christ." The author is Rolf Hochhuth, 31, a member of the German Evangelical (Protestant) Church.

Hochhuth says he studied historical records for three years and interviewed officials of the Vatican Curia before he sat down to write the mammoth drama, ironically sub-titled "A Christian Tragedy."

History cum Fiction

The play, a mixture of history and fiction, tells the story of a fictional young Jesuit and Roman nobleman, Father Riccardo, who learns in wartime Berlin of the Nazis' "final solution" programme to exterminate all Jews.

The man who tells him, Kurt Gerstein, really existed. An officer, Gerstein was an inside contact of a Protestant church. He hanged himself in 1945 after supplying allied investigators information on Nazi crimes against humanity.

Convinced that the Vatican will act, the priest, a member of the Apostolic mission, travels back to Rome after helping a Jew escape to Italy in the disguise of a priest. The Jesuit keeps the yellow star of David all Jews were ordered to wear.

In Rome, his visit prompts benevolence but no action. The Roman Catholic Church, he hears, cannot issue an outright condemnation because acting against the Nazis would play the Communists' game.

Highlight of the drama comes when Father Riccardo is received by the Pontiff — again without avail. Frustrated, the priest tacks the yellow star onto his cassock and joins a column of Jews headed for Auschwitz, where he is killed.

Directed by Piscator

The play is directed by Erwin Piscator, the well-known producer who was in New York during the war as an anti-Nazi emigre. It was received with applause and some boos when it opened in Berlin last week.

The newspaper of the Berlin Roman Catholic diocese said playwright Hochhuth made clear he was unable to conceive the personality of Pope Pius, who died at 82 in 1958.

Documents were distributed by the Church to show that Pope Pius ordered all religious orders to give shelter to fugitive Jews of Rome. The documents included a message from Nahum Goldmann, President of the World Jewish Congress, which eulogized Pope Pius after his death as a helper of persecuted Jews.

German reviewers praised the author's dramatic talents, but were largely critical of the historic implications.

The play will have its non-German premiere in London in September.

"ORT" Day Proclaimed By Mayor

Wednesday, March 20th, was designated as ORT DAY in Toronto, according to a proclamation issued by Mayor Donald Summerville. Chapters of ORT (Organization for Rehabilitation through Training) will observe the day by special programs and ceremonies of rededication to the work of ORT and by the attraction of new members to carry on this work.

ORT operates 600 vocational schools in 20 countries, with an annual enrolment of 40,000 students. The schools help refugees to establish themselves, teach them modern trades and skills, and help them to live a life of security and dignity in countries such as France and Israel where the need for adjustment is great.

Women's Canadian ORT is affiliated with the Canadian ORT Federation and the World ORT Union.

Mrs. M. B. Manilla is president of Toronto Women's ORT; Mrs. A. B. Bennett, national president of Women's Canadian ORT.

THEATRE HI-LIGHTS

● This week through March 23rd, Milk and Honey, one of Broadway's most recent musical successes, takes over the stage of Toronto's O'Keefe Center. The Gerard Oestreicher production, with the New York company, stars Robert Weede, Molly Picon, Terry Saunders and Tommy Rall, repeating their Broadway roles.

Milk and Honey captures the adventures of a group of American tourists visiting Israel as they witness an exciting Independence Day celebration, a beautiful Yemenite wedding ceremony with its ritual song and dances, a "moshev" (collective farm) in the Negev, and the building of a proud new nation by a people whose love for their land overcomes the difficulties of their task.

Along with this is the comic touch of a group of American widows, in search of new spouses, led by Molly Picon. Mr. Weede demonstrates the extraordinary tenor voice that made him a Metropolitan Opera star, singing Jerry Herman's exciting music in robust solo and lovely duet with his vis-a-vis, Terry Saunders, who scored as Lady Thiang in The King and I on stage and screen. Tommy Rall, who stops the show, was elevated to stardom after the New York critics hailed his superior talents.

The book Milk and Honey, was written by Don Appell. Music and lyrics were written by Jerry Herman; staging, by Albert Marre. Donald Saddler choreographed the musical. Settings are by Howard Bay, with costumes by Miles White.

SUSAN, BECKY — MEET THEM

Children In Toronto: Looking For A Family

Children who have lost the love and caring of their own families must have substitute parents, sisters and brothers. It is in the tradition of Jewish life to help its most helpless members.

Toronto's Jewish Family and Child Service is again faced with the problem of finding suitable Jewish homes. We feel sure that almost everybody wants to help and the question that may spring to your mind is whether you are able to help. This will naturally depend on a number of things you may want to discuss with us.

We need homes for little human beings who have feelings; they express their happiness and also have ways of showing when they feel hurt. In fact, they need foster homes because their own families are not capable of providing physical and emotional care for them. This certainly is hurtful to these children as such breakdown would cause pain to any one of us. We too would cry, have nightmares and be angry at the whole world.

If you can develop an understanding for their behaviour and substitute the love they lost, give them a feeling of being wanted, they will reciprocate. Their love is the greatest reward you may expect.

Here are some illustrative cases and while reading you may want to ask yourself: "COULD I BE PARENT TO ONE OF THESE CHILDREN?"

Susan

SUSAN is a lovely girl of three. Her mother had to be hospitalized with TB and her father, a labourer, cannot look after the children because he has to take jobs wherever he can find them, all over the Province. Because of her age it would be important to find a Jewish foster home for Susan. In this case we had two offers, and they were from very nice and very warm people. Nevertheless, they were still not suitable as foster parents because they wanted to adopt Susan. They found it impossible to accept that Susan is legally protected as a foster child, her parents have a right to Susan, and they will want her back as soon as the mother can leave the sanitorium.—Foster parents have to be prepared to give up a child of which they have grown very fond and get satisfaction from the knowledge that whatever they have been able to give to the child emotionally has contributed to its growth.

Johnny

JOHNNY is nine years old. His mother died when he was eight and his father tried to keep the family together but was, in the long run, unable to make a living and look after Johnny and two smaller girls. He was able to place the girls with relatives but Johnny had to be taken into foster care. Within one year he has been in four homes and is, as might be expected, a very unhappy child by now, feeling rejected by his family and by everybody else. The explanation that we have no suitable foster homes and have to accept offers for short term placement from non-Jewish families cannot help Johnny's feeling of being rejected.

Millie

MILLIE is a nice-looking, pretty bright girl of seven. She never knew her father and her mother was never really able to accept Millie emotionally. Nevertheless, she kept the child for six years; Millie became a very unhappy child, and by the time she came into foster care her resentment of the way she was treated found expression in acting out behaviour. Had we been able to select the right kind of foster parents for Millie, people with a capacity to love and understand this girl's problem and thereby help overcome her feeling of being not wanted — Millie may have developed normally. However, and because of the first year Millie had to be placed in five homes within one year and if we are not able to get a sufficient number of offers from which to select a suitable family for this child, she may have to go on to suffer replacements, making her a likely candidate for psychiatric care.

Becky

BECKY, aged eleven, lives with her widowed mother, who has been through the most horrible experiences in German concentration camps, married after the war, lived for years in displaced persons camps. Soon after Becky's birth, the father died and mother and child came to Canada. Recently the mother suffered a mental breakdown, and the child had to be taken into foster care. Over a period of six months Becky had to live in three foster homes. The reason for this is our lack of a "pool" of suitable Jewish foster homes, which necessitates that a child be placed on an emergency basis and it is, therefore, not possible to "match" the child to the foster family.

CANADIAN COMPANY TO PROMOTE ISRAELI TOURISM

A historic point in the development of tourism from Canada to Israel was reached today, with the signing of an agreement by four of the leading travel agencies in Canada forming a new company, Canada Israel Tours, which will be devoted solely to the orderly development of planned tours to Israel and Europe. The major participants are Alex Lucas of Lucas and King, Hamilton, Herbert Niren of A. Nirenberg Travel Bureau in Montreal, Harold Seligman of Union Travel Service in Toronto, and Murray Heifetz of Dominion Travel Office in Toronto.

The four travel agencies have had a combined history of almost 150 years as established travel agents in their respective cities. The combined experience of the four officers of the new company, together with their associates in the travel agencies indicated totals several hundreds of years. All of the four officers have held national position in the American Society of Travel Agents, and are held in the highest esteem as professionals in their trade. In addition to their professional qualifications, the agencies individually have had a long record of experence in organizing and promoting group departures to Europe and Israel. Among the organizations for whom such groups have been arranged, are Jewish National Fund, B'nai Brith, the State of Israel Bond Organization, Israel Medical Association, United Jewish Welfare Fund, Labour Zionist Organization of Canada, Government of Israel Investment Authority, and many others.

The new company will promote a series of tours based on the new low rate provided for groups of 40 people or more. The initial plans contemplate between four and six tours in 1963 with a frequency increasing to approximately one a month in 1964. The first departure will be on May 15th and there will be a departure about every two months afterwards. The inclusive price for a three week holiday will be $1,019.00 Canadian funds from Montreal. With its tremendous purchasing power due to the volume already being controlled by the participating agencies, Canada Israel Tours will be able to offer the highest quality land arrangements at the lowest price to various organizations and groups who wish to take advantage of the new low group rates. Most tours will also be available through local travel agents.

LANDSMANSHAFTEN ACTIVE

The following fraternal groups and Societies are active in the Toronto Committee for the Ghetto Fighters Museum in Israel:

YOUTH FOR GHETTO FIGHTERS' MUSEUM IN ISRAEL

The quarters, half dollars and dollars of 120 USY young people were sent to Rabbi David Monson towards the building of the Ghetto Fighter's Museum in Israel. The youth were on the train going to a United Synagogue Youth convention of the Eastern Canadian Region.

Fesach Schindler, Educational Director of the Adath Israel Congregation in Toronto, said: "This token contribution of $64.08 proved to these fine youngsters that prior to building bridges to a hopeful future we must strike roots into the rich, though often tragic, past."

The YMHA youth groups responded with heartening warmth to an appeal to help in building a new wing for the Ghetto Fighters' Museum. An evening has been planned which will be devoted to raising money for the project.

BETH SHOLOM BROTHERHOOD

Mr. J. Egit spoke to Beth Sholom Brotherhood on Sunday, March 3rd on the theme "The tragedy of yesterday—a warning for tomorrow." The breakfast meeting was chaired by Mr. Goldman and Lazar Lifschitz introduced the speaker.

DAUGHTERS OF ISRAEL SOCIETY PLEDGE $500

At a meeting on March 4th the Daughters of Israel heard Mr. J. Egit speak on the Ghetto Fighters' Museum Project. It was decided to dedicate a memorial plaque in the name of the Society for $500. Present were Mr. George Steinhouse, I. H. Chapnik, and L. Hauer, who participated in the discussion.

LODZER CENTER FOR MUSEUM

Julius Chiechanowsky chaired a large breakfast meeting at Lodzer Centre on Sunday, March 3rd, at which Rabbi David Monson spoke about the Ghetto Fighters' Museum. An appeal for funds was made by Mr. J. Egit and $500 was pledged, $300 raised on the spot.

Ghetto Fighters Museum in Israel, to which the Sefer Hazikaron will be taken by a delegation from Toronto

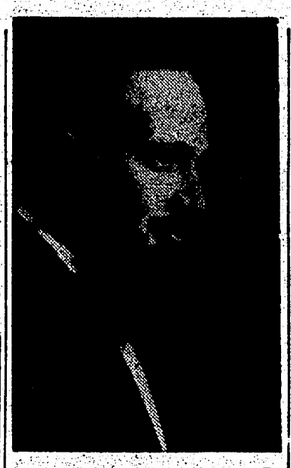
NEW CHIEF RABBI FOR BELGIUM

Brussels (JCNS) Dr. Robert Dreyfus, Chief Rabbi of the Moselle, in France, with headquarters in Metz, has been appointed Chief Rabbi of Belgium, a post vacant for many years.

Rabbi Dreyfus was rabbi of a Brussels congregation from 1948 to 1955 before taking the post in Metz. He was born in France in 1913 and studied medicine before deciding to devote himself to rabbinical studies. He will assume his new post at the end of June.

In Memory Of Sharon Kirsh

A garden of trees will be planted in the Canada Forest in Ein Karem, Jerusalem, through the Jewish National Fund, by approximately 200 former classmates from the University of Toronto and William Lyon McKenzie Collegiate in memory of the late Sharon Kirsh who was killed recently in a level crossing accident. Also a number of books in her memory will be donated to the library of the Associated Hebrew Day Schools of Toronto, where Sharon was an outstanding student.



NEW YORK RABBI AT SHAAREI TEFILLAH, — On Sunday, March 17th, Rabbi Dr. Immanuel Jakobovitz above), former chief rabbi of Ireland and now spiritual leader of the Fifth Avenue Synagogue in New York City, will be the guest speaker at a supper lecture of Toronto's Shaarei Tefillah synagogue.

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

HOW DO YOU KNOW?

Dear Editor,

There has been some confusion among your readers caused by an advertisement (CJN, February 22) issued in the name of the Mizrachi-Hapoel Hamizrachi organization. In the issue of March 1 we read that this ad has been disavowed by the purported signatories. And so an attempt was made to set the record straight.

It seems, however, that your editorial writer was unable to resist the opportunity of taking a gratuitous swipe in the direction of the ultra-orthodox. May we ask what possible evidence you have in accusing the ultra-orthodox? Is it your reasoning that any one who would perpetrate such a fraud or write such a statement must be ultra-orthodox, or is it that only the ultra-orthodox could do such a thing? From a pragmatic point of view such an action would not be beneficial to them.

Finally, we should like to know what degree of orthodoxy entitles one to be selected as your whipping-boy, to be called "hit and run zealots" and to be compared with "hypocrites who act as Zimri".

Since we are of the "Union of Orthodox Congregations" not of the ultra-orthodox, and are presumably not included in the accusation, we feel that we can speak dispassionately. It does not seem quite right to us that you seek a vaguely defined minority group to serve as a scape goat.

• Sisterhood will have its general meeting and nominations on Tuesday, March 19th, 8:30 p.m.

OSHAWA, KINGSTON DEBATE CRISIS

Kingston (CJN). — The communities of Oshawa and Kingston recently held Congress Town Hall evenings with the emphasis on the current problems of Jewish communities in crisis in various parts of the world.

In Oshawa the meeting was addressed by Rabbi Dr. I. Freedman of St. Catherines who dealt with one community in crisis—that of South Africa. Dr. Freedman, a Canadian by birth, served in a South African pulpit for more than 20 years before returning to Canada recently. Ben Kayfetz, Executive Director of the National Joint Community Relations Committee of the Canadian Jewish Congress and B'nai B'rith, gave his impressions of seven days spent in Havana last October, coinciding with the week of the Cuban crisis.

The discussion centred on two points: the dilemma in which South African Jewry finds itself both with respect to the apartheid problem and the resentment aroused by nationalist circles by Israel's policy of siding with the Afro-Asian bloc at the United Nations with respect to apartheid. The other issue discussed arose from Mr. Kayfetz' address: the position of a Jewish community in a revolutionary society and the general position of the Jews in Latin America.

The meeting was chaired by Dr. Abe Walsglass, Chairman of the Oshawa Jewish Centre Adult Education Committee.

In Kingston the meeting was co-sponsored by the Jewish Community Council and the Hillel Foundation of Queen's University. Mr. Sheldon Cohen, President of the Council was in the chair. The speakers here were Stephen Berger and Ben Kayfetz of Toronto. Mr. Berger, an engineer and community leader, himself a refugee from Europe in the war years, spoke of Jewish world responsibilities and what Canadian Jews can do about fulfilling their obligations.

CANADIANS ORDAINED

New York, (CJN).—Three rabbis from Canada, graduates of Yeshiva University's Rabbi Isaac Elchanan Theological Seminary, will take part in a three-day Torah Ordination Convocation, March 16—18, it was announced today by Dr. Samuel Belkin, president.

The rabbis will participate in ceremonies marking the conferring of "Semicha" (Ordination: the highest degree in Torah Study) to be held in Nathan Lamport Auditorium at the University's Main Center.

The three Canadians are: Rabbi Joseph Deitcher of 370 Quinport Road, Halifax, N.S.; Rabbi Irwin Witty of 360 Enniskillen Avenue, Winnipeg, Man. and Rabbi Ephraim Zimand of 125 Forsythe Street, N., Sarnia, Ont.

These rabbis are part of a group of 110 rabbis from 11 states, Canada and Argentina. Included in the group are chaplains currently on duty with the Armed Forces throughout the world.

Ottawa

March 9th — Beth Shalom Sisterhood held a masquerade for Purim — the J.C.C. was transformed for the evening into "Her Majesty, Queen Esther's Persian Gardens".

9th — B'nai Jacob Sisterhood invited the husbands of the members to a point Purim celebration in the vestry of the synagogue.

10th — Ottawa Women's O.R.T. Tea at the J.C.C. Mr. Robert Hyndman, well known artist, generously offered his talents in this cause.

11th — Hadassah, Medical Service luncheon at the Chateau Laurier under the chairmanship of Mrs. Bert Krugel, commemorating 45 years of Hadassah in Ottawa.

13th — Agudath Israel Sisterhood Torah Fund luncheon at the J.C.C.

20th — B'Nai Jacob Sisterhood is inviting to its March meeting the Machzikei Adas Sisterhood; the chairman will be Mrs. L. Glustein, president of B'Nai Jacob.

28th — Ottawa Women's O.R.T. Social Services luncheon:

OTTAWA: RECENT EVENTS

20th February — Beth Shalom Sisterhood was addressed by Mr. Max Wershof, Assistant Under Secretary of State for External Affairs. There was also a display of recent additions to the list of certified foods. The meeting was under the chairmanship of Mrs. Florence Kizell.

22nd-24th February — Eastern Canadian Region of United Synagogue Youth held a convention in Ottawa, the guests of the Youth Chapter, Agudath Israel Congregation. Delegates came from Toronto, Hamilton, Montreal, Ste-Catherines, London and Port Colborne, and were addressed by His Excellency, the Ambassador of Israel, Yaacov Herzog. Other speakers were Peter Geffen, president of the National United Synagogue Youth, and Paul Freedman of New York. The religious service on the Sabbath was conducted by the young people.

23rd February — B'Nai B'Rith Women, Parliament Chapter, held a highly successful carnival at the Community Centre. Dancing, games of skill and an original musical comedy by Leonard Max, Simone Brightstein and Miriam Cohen, directed by Phil Dubinsky, highlighted the evening. Part of the proceeds are going to provide Medicalert tags for Ottawa people who are unable to afford them.

OTTAWA DOINGS

- B'nai B'rith Parliament Lodge, under the presidency of Mr. Lawrence Freedman, gathered some 25 crippled children from the Ottawa area on Sunday, 10th March, and took them to a hockey game and dinner afterwards.
- Election of officers was held recently by the Ottawa Hebrew Benefit Society. Re-elected unanimously: Mr. Al Segal, president; Mr. Ben Greenberg, vice-president; Mr. Gus Solomon, financial secretary, and Mr. Max Kaplan, corresponding secretary. The meeting was combined with a dinner to which members' wives were invited, and a special tribute was paid to the many who have 25 or more years of service to their credit.
- Tau Alpha Ro, sorority of Jewish high school girls, held a tea recently at the home of the vice-president, Miss Paula Fine.

Pioneer Women: On 17th March, the Dagania Group holds a Memorial Tea at the Histadrut Centre, honouring the late Mrs. Ruth Levendel, one of the founders of the Pioneer Women. Co-hostesses will be: Mrs. Sonia Agulnik, Mrs. Rae Gosewich, Mrs. L. Saslove, Mrs. Freda Swartzman and Mrs. L. Zbar.

University Dinner In Sudbury

Sudbury, (Ontario). Our community greeted the Hebrew University's Family Endowment Plan with much enthusiasm at a "University Dinner" held last month under the auspices of the B'nai B'rith Lodge # 1592, at which Allan Bronfman, National President of the Canadian Friends of the Hebrew University, was the guest speaker. Above, Mr. Bronfman (left) presents an illuminated scroll to Jack Love, Chairman of the Hebrew University Committee of the Lodge (centre) and to Morton Pliskow, the President of the Lodge (right). The presentation marked the establishment of "the B'nai B'rith Lodge # 1592 Endowment for Student Aid" at the Hebrew University. Each year, forever, this permanent Fund will yield assistance in the Lodge's name to Israel's students of today, her leaders of tomorrow.

BULLETINS

OPEN JEWISH HIGH SCHOOLS IN FRANCE

Paris, (JCNS) — The Alliance Israelite Universelle has decided to open secondary schools in France to cope with the newly created need for education of the many Jewish youth from Algeria and other North African countries.

The first school will be opened in Pavillon Sous Bois, near Paris, and will be ready for the 1963-64 school year.

Negotiations also are going on for the acquisition of a building in Nice where another secondary school will be run by the Alliance. Both schools will, at first, have four classes of 30 pupils each. At a later stage, additional schools might be opened — in Marseilles, Lyons, and Toulouse, where thousands of Jewish refugees have settled.

ISRAELI STUDENTS HOSTS TO GERMANS

JERUSALEM (JCNS). — By 31 votes to 28 a resolution was passed on Thursday by the Israel Students' Federation that they would act as hosts to German students visiting Israel. It stated that Israel students will participate in international gatherings with Germans on condition that the main activities and aims of the German students' organisations are to combat antisemitism, inform German youth of the history and causes of the holocaust, and promote friendship with Israel.

Main opposers to the resolution were students of the Hebrew University of whom 21 out of 26 voted against it. When the result of the vote was announced they walked out of the meeting.

The other educational institutions represented were the Haifa Technion, the Tel Aviv branch of the Hebrew University, Tel Aviv University, Bar-Ilan University, the Haifa Institute of Higher Studies and the Bezalel School of Art.

Prove Jews Organized Revolts Against Nazis

WARSAW (JCNS) — New documents, which have recently come to light, have been examined by Professor Ber Mark, Director of the Jewish Historical Institute of Warsaw and have revealed that there were at least a dozen revolts against the Nazis by Jews in various cities before the Warsaw uprising on April 19, twenty years ago. According to a statement by Professor Mark, it appears that partisan Jewish groups fought battles with the Nazis in Bialystok, Kielce and other places. In all of them the Jews managed to secure small quantities of arms, and inflicted heavy casualties.

Thus, for instance, in an uprising by a group of partisans in Bendzin, which took place in September, 1942, a number of Germans were killed. News of these risings spread rapidly to other parts of Poland, and similar revolts against the Nazis occured. By that time the fight in the Warsaw Ghetto was at its height.

IN QUEBEC

Resentment About "Nationalite"

Montreal (CJN). — The city of Outremont, part of Greater Montreal, recently decided to introduce identification cards among its residents in order to make more convenient the identification of qualified voters in the municipal elections — "telegraphing" votes and impersonation has been a persistent practice in Quebec's election habits.

What has caused some resentment to this plan was that, in the sample card shown in the press, there was a space for 'nationalite', filled in with the words, "Canadien-Francais". This has led many to believe that ethnic origin should be stipulated in the card (one is reminded of the internal passport of the USSR where ethnic nationality is shown: Great Russian, Ukrainian, Usbek, Jewish, etc.).

In protesting the move the Canadian Jewish Congress has written the following letter to the mayer and aldermen of Outremont:

'We would assume that the rubrique 'nationalite' is provided for the purpose of establishing whether a prospective voter has Canadian citizenship, a prerequisite of his right to vote in the municipal elections. His ethnic origin is immaterial in this connection. Ethnic origin is an important part of the Canadian Census and the statistical purposes the Census serves. Surely, however, when it comes to the exercise of civil rights, including the most important right, the vote, we act as Canadians, not as French-Canadians, English - Canadians, Jewish Canadians, Hungarian-Canadians or what-have-you".

"We do not assume that the filling-out of the sample card for the Montreal Star necessarily reflects any declared intention of the city administration just how the cards are to be completed. Since, on the other hand, an important principle is involved, namely that everything should be avoided which could tend to set groups of the population apart when it comes to the exercise of their common cviil rights, we felt it our duty to bring the matter to your attention. We are quite confident that suitable administrative instructions emanating from City Hall will clear up any misunderstanding that could exist."

CANADIAN PANORAMA

Mr. Habila, who looks forty, is actually in his 60's. He has two sons also living abroad, one a student at the University of Pittsburgh and the other an officer of the Nigerian Air Force now stationed in London, Ont.

Jews and Moslems meet

An unusual inter-faith symposium was held recently on the campus of the University of Western Ontario where Jewish representatives met with Moslems and Christians during Religious Emphasis Week and discussed and interpreted their respective creeds.

Speaking for Islam was a mathematics lecturer at U.W.O., Dr. M. M. Ali, who is also past president of the London Moslem Mosque. Rabbi David Kirshenbaum of B'nai Moses ben Juda Synagogue participated, as did the principal of Huron College (an Anglican institution), Dr. John Morden.

Response To The Bishops

In his recent declaration replying to the Catholic bishops' petition for expanded concessions to the Separate School, Premier John Robarts made two observations that have a direct interest to the Jewish community.

● "Our society," he stated in the legislature, "simply has not enough wealth to support a dual school system beyond the elementary level, or a multi-denominational system at any level."

Here Mr. Robarts seems to be casting a hint that no extension of the Separate School arrangement to others is being contemplated. Whether he knows of the suggestions that are being made in some Jewish day school circles that money be sought from governmental sources or not, this may reflect an answer to be anticipated.

Religious Courses Offered

● His second observation was more specific and given in greater detail. It was a suggestion that, though the bishops' demand for Separate high schools was rejected, he was offering a substitute: religious courses in the high schools.

Here is part of what Mr. Robarts had to say on this question:

"It might very well be that this principle could be extended into our secondary schools and teachers' colleges, where religious knowledge options, carrying credit standing, supervised by the clergy of the faith concerned, might be provided. This is a very large and important subject, which cannot be dealt with without long and careful thought and consideration. However, I would be very happy to institute the necessary discussions in order that this concept, which has served so well in the development of our university system, could be closely examined and evaluated in relation to that area of our educational system lying between Grade 8 and the universities. This could be done without in any way affecting the basic rights, privileges and responsibilities in our school system."

Montreal's Old "Y"

Since 1929 the Mortimer Davis YMHA has been a landmark on Montreal's Jewish landscape. It has been sold now for half-a-million dollars to the University of Montreal to be used for its physical education courses.

Montreal's YM & YWHA got its start in 1910 in an old house on Ontario Street. It later shifted to what is now Clark Street and afterwards moved to St. Urbain Street, taking over the premises of an Irish athletic club. Israel Rabinowitz, writing in the Eagle, remembers a symphony orchestra of the YMHA in those days in which he, as a youngster, participated as a violinist. The conductor was the prominent musical figure J. J. Gagnier. Cost of this enterprise was borne by a Montreal clothing manufacturer, Sol Kellert.

The next home of the "Y" was on Sherbrooke until it moved to the new structure on Mount Royal Street, named for the knighted tobacco magnate, Sir Mortimer Davis, who donated the total expenditure for the building.

In Don Mills

A Brotherhood Week dinner produced more empty seats than filled those in Don Mills the other week. According to the Don Mills Mirror, a neighborhood weekly, "tables of untouched rolls, juice and pickles embarrassed members of the Don Mills five service clubs who sponsored the event."

The expected attendance was the largest yet in the five years of the event. Wives were invited and the location was shifted from a church to Don Mills Collegiate allowing for what was expected to be a larger crowd.

● It is not generally known that Dr Fred Schwarz (rhymes with "wars", Australia's gift to the North American Ultra - Right, owes his American career to none other than a well known Toronto figure of the recent past.

It was the Reverend T. T. Shields, unreconstructed Baptist irregular, the stormy petrel of Jarvis and Gerrard streets, Canada's arch exponent of anti-Catholic bigotry and fearless foe of evolution and religious modernism, that "discovered" Schwarz and gave him his opportunity, an opportunity of which he made full use.

Back in 1950, Shields and a New Jersey clergyman named McIntire, on a visit to Australia, recognized the undeniable talents of this orator-lecturer-physician and invited him to come to North America on a two month speaking tour.

Once Dr. Schwarz tasted the fruits of success he decided to stay and make the best of his "Christian Anti-Communist Crusade". Ever since, he has been one of the most successful (from the lucrative point of view) of the John Birch type of propagandists.

Schwarz has an interesting "gimmick" in his approach. He is the son of an Austrian Jew named Paul Schwarz, who left Vienna for England at the age of 12. There he converted to Christianity and married Phoebe Smith, an English girl who was a Methodist lay worker. The elder Schwarz himself became a lay preacher of the Pentecostal persuasion and the son, Frederick Charles, experienced a religious re-birth at 17.

This, of course, gives Schwarz a means for disavowing anti-semitism: how can he, born of a Jewish father, in any way be anti-Jewish, is his claim. This, however, has not stopped him in his speeches in Texas of complaining bitterly how "the Jews" were able to block his progress in the city of New York, where, according to Schwarz, "they" controled everything.
